

François Lévêque

Professor of Economics, Ecole des mines de Paris, Université PSL francois.leveque@minesparis.psl.eu

Ecole des mines de Paris

60 boulevard Saint Michel 75006 Paris

Mobile: 33 6 73 68 39 70

My primary research, teaching and consulting interests lie in the fields of competition, energy-climate and regulation. My most recent book, co-authored with Matthieu Glachant, focuses on adaptation to climate change (Odile Jacob, January 2025). I am deeply committed to economic outreach and popularization, as well to a learning programme in Africa.

I serve as Head of the Chair of Economics of Gas (receiving fundings from EDF and TotalEnergies). I am a member of the EDF Scientific Committee. I was a founding partner of Microeconomix, an economic consulting firm that later joined Deloitte. I have also acted as an independent expert in numerous litigation cases.

To date, I have published 20 books and over 100 academic papers.